

Truly Interactive Games

Installment #1

HUMAN Bingo

Great way to kick off a meeting...tell everyone it's time to play HUMAN BINGO! You then distribute squares of paper like the one below. Now you can change the categories as you see fit, but the object is the same. You go around the room finding individuals that meet the criteria and write their initials in the square. First, person to get row up & down, across or diagonally yells BINGO!

B	I	N	G	O
has a cat	has won a contest	Has ears pierced twice	likes to wake up early	likes the woods
is afraid of spiders	has met a celebrity	has 2 or more children	Has taken a train trip	has skydived
Willing to tell a joke now	Someone not on Facebook	CUB SCOUTS RULE!!	doesn't drink coffee	wears contact lenses or wigs
kills plants	Got underwear for Christmas	plays the violin	ate chocolate today	never swears
Worked at a fastfood joint	speaks 3 languages	cuts their own hair	can't swim	Is the youngest child

Guess What Animal

Now this game will take some preparation on your part. But it is a lot of fun and I guarantee if your willing to ham it up your kids will treat you like a rockstar. Plus, there is a fun giveaway for each participant!

I suggest that this interactive game be used at the end of an activity.

WHAT YOU NEED: Balloon Pump & Bag of 260 Qualtex balloons (party city sells these at about 8 bucks a bag). A basic knowledge of how to make balloon animals. If you don't have this knowledge, at the end of this description I have a FREE resource online that can teach you!

GAME: Gather the kids together sitting on the floor. When they are attentive, what am I saying, once you raise your hand with the OK sign to get their attention...do not say anything. Instead introduce yourself by the use of hand signals and listening to audience make their guesses, that you are going to do an impression of an animal, and the first person to guess will get a balloon sculpture of that animal (if you are reluctant to tap into your inner child you could have one of the scouts mime one of the animals). The first person to guess the animal gets a balloon sculpture of that animal or item. Each participant may only have one balloon so everyone gets a turn.

You might want to pre blow up the balloons to save time.

Now for those of you who have never made a balloon animal in your life. Here are two great resources:

#1 Download my basic balloon animal guide where I teach how to make 8 balloon sculptures. Simply click on the link below to get the PDF.

<http://www.4acefamily.com/page1/styled-2/index.html>

Or if you're more ambitious there is a wonderful FREE course that teaches dozens of different balloon sculptures at: <http://magic.about.com/od/balloontwisting/tp/balloonanimal.htm>

This is a really fun activity that your kids will love! If you are interested in a program of magic and FUN, look no further than 4 ACE PRODUCTIONS with none other than yours truly...Brian Richards. For more information go to:

<http://www.4acefamily.com/page1/page3/page3.html>

Or contact me directly at: Phone - (763) 424-3487

Cell - (763) 656-3662

Email - magic@4aceproductions.com